Bajo 5k. Autocad Anywhere (formerly Ativa CAD) -.Effect of a ketogenic diet supplemented with a mid-chain triglyceride on seizure control in a murine model of Lennox-Gastaut Syndrome. Lennox-Gastaut Syndrome (LGS) is the most severe form of childhood-onset epilepsy. It is typically refractory to pharmacological treatment.
LGS is often associated with profound cognitive deficits. A ketogenic diet (KD) is associated with epileptic encephalopathy, which improves in LGS. We assessed the therapeutic potential of a KD supplemented with a mid-chain triglyceride (MCT), which induces ketosis in a subgroup of patients with LGS. We randomized mice with LGS and a KD-based diet supplemented with either MCT or sunflower oil. The MCT-fed animals had a significantly increased ketosis index and a higher serum β -hydroxybutyrate level compared to the animals fed the oil-based diet. The MCT-fed animals had more disease-associated seizures and had a longer seizure-free period in their seizure diary. They had a significant increase in the entorhinal cortex, which was not observed in the oil-fed animals. MCT supplementation induced microgliosis in the entorhinal cortex that was not seen in the oil-fed animals. MCT supplementation in KD led to increased seizure thresholds in vitro as well as increased seizure thresholds and higher
